GERMAN PROPAGANDA...

Lieutenant Pat O'Brien, like Private Peat and Sergt. Empey, has had to contend with German propaganda wherever he has gone throughout the country. In fact, it is known that German agents were sent ahead of Sergt. Empey wherever he went to lecture, with a view to starting insidious rumors in an effort to discount the great message this man was delivering throughout the country.

The same is believed to be true in the case of Lieutenant O'Brien. Hopkinstown people, therefore, need not be surprised if the German propagandist makes his appearance in their midst in an effort to discount the message that O'Brien will deliver.

Lieutenant O'Brien is the most sought after man on the platform in America today. The New York Sun describes him as "an American hero of the first water." He certainly has had the most thrilling experiences of any one man in the war and he knows more of what was going on behind the German lines up to last December, than probably any other one man in the country. Consequently, he is a special target of German propaganda.

This propaganda is most insidious. It takes forms that are most unexpected. It makes use of people who ordinarily do not know they are being used to circulate all sorts of rumors and stories which are absolutely without foundation.

If America is going to win this war, it must be won by grit, by staying power, by the morale of the people. If Germany can break down the morale of the people and discount the influence of men like O'Brien, she will have accomplished her purpose.

Without the army at home, the army abroad would be absolutely useless. It is necessary to back up our fighting men in France to the limit. If we do not do so, we will be practically murdering them, and the German propagandist, no matter who he may be, or wherever he may appear, or in whatever guise, should be put out of business.

Paducah has mustered in Co. B, of the Kentucky State Guards, with 72 officers and men. Gladstone Burns is Captain.

Committees have been named but active work has not yet begun, to raise $13,000 for the Red Cross in this county, next week.

Today is "Mother's Day." If your mother is dead wear a white flower. If she is living wear any bright colored one and write her a letter.

Surgeon General Rupert Blue dropped in unannounced on a visit to Camp Taylor Friday.

Another big call for troops is coming about June 15th.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT.

On account of a conflicting date at the Tabernacle, the entertainment to be given by the children of the Virginia Street School has been changed to Thursday evening, May 16th, at eight o'clock. At this time the prizes for the best Liberty Loan essays will be awarded. Three five dollar War Savings Stamps will be given as follows: One for the best essay from the Primary grades in the city schools, one for the best from the Grammar grades, including the first year High School, and one for the best from county schools. The committees have been hard at work judging these contests and their decision will be announced from the platform Thursday night. The children of both city and county schools are interested and will be out in great numbers to hear the result. One feature of the program will be an oration "A Righteous War," by Fagan Dixon, of the Howell school. This young orator won the medal in the contest that was recently held by the High School of the county, and he has been asked to deliver that oration. Hopkinstown is fortunate in having this opportunity to hear him.

BERT HOWE DEAD.

Bertrom L. Howe, a son of the late W. H. Howe, died at his home in Nashville Friday, aged 38 years. When a child he lived in this city with his parents.

FORTY-FOURTH EVENT OF LOUISVILLE A DARK HORSE TRIUMPH.

Louisville, Ky., May 11.—W. S. Kelmer's Exterminator, a 29 to 1 shot, won the forty-fourth Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs this afternoon on a heavy track. The majority of the large crowd present had already picked War Cloud as a favorite and most of the money was likewise placed.

Only a mere handful expected the winner to be in the race at all, as was indicated by the great odds offered in many places over the country.

The race finished as follows:
Exterminator, first, winner.
Excoba, second.
Viva America, third.
War Cloud, fourth.

TAKE DESERTER TO ARMY CAMP

Policeman E. B. E. Elvits will leave at 11:15 this morning over the I. C. railroad with John Robertson, colored, for Camp Taylor. Robertson was picked up here some days ago and found to be without any evidence or proof that he had registered last June. He gave his name as Grant Lee and said he had registered somewhere in Alabama. Chief Roper telephoned to Alabama and got information enough to hold Robertson as a deserter. Deserters are all taken to the camp when caught and the case is following the usual cause of procedure.

HEREFORD SALE

CHRISTIAN COUNTY STOCK WILL BE TAKEN TO MORGANFIELD MONDAY.

Mr. F. E. White, proprietor of the Dixie Bae Line Stock Farm, will go to Morganfield, Ky., tomorrow with several bulls from his herd of Hereford cattle which will be offered for sale there Tuesday, by the Kentucky Pure Bred Live Stock Association. Mr. White has some of the best Herefords in Kentucky and his cattle are expected to bring long prices.

ITALIAN WAR HEROES HONORED

Soldiers of the valiant Italian army that checked the German onrush at the Piave line received decorations at an impressive ceremony held in Milan. The photograph shows a mutilated officer honored with a war medal that had been awarded to his brother who was killed in action.

SECOND CALL COMING SOON

BOTH WHITE AND COLORED WILL LIKELY BE CALLED ABOUT JUNE 15.

Although no official order has been issued the Kentuckian has authentic information that a call will be made about the middle of June for a quota of men to be sent to Camp. Just how many will be asked for in the call is not known, but assurance has been given that some colored men will be included in the call.

One hundred and eighty will be notified to report for the call for May 25 when 105 will be selected. The list for the 180 has been prepared and is awaiting the approval of the Local Board before sending out the notices for the men to report.

AUTO WRECK DURING STORM

F. L. STANLEY AND E. C. RADFORD HAVE NARROW ESCAPE—STANLEY INJURED.

A car driven by F. L. Stanley was run into and turned over by a car driven by a colored chauffeur of the Ideal Motor Co., yesterday during the windstorm, on West Seventh street. The Ideal car escaped injury, but Stanley's car was badly wrecked. E. C. Radford was riding on the seat besides the driver. The car had curtains up and was completely overturned when it was side-swiped. Radford was unhurt and soon crawled out from the wreck. Stanley had one shoulder broken and sustained cuts about his face. A car from one of the garages went to the scene and rendered assistance. The negro jumped out of his car and left it when the accident occurred.

STABBED WITH A NEEDLE.

Jesse McGregor, a colored employee of the Climax Mill plant, stuck a big needle into his back Friday afternoon. The needle was used to sew sacks of flour and was sticking in his coat, hanging on the wall, when McGregor ran against it in some way. His injury is quite serious, as the needle went in deep enough to endanger his lung.

ROYALTY HATS OFF TO AMERICA

KING OF ENGLAND REVIEWS A PARADE OF SOUTHERN TROOPS IN LONDON.

(By International News Service.)

London, May 11.—King George and the Prince of Wales, standing outside Buckingham palace at noon today, reverently bared their heads as the American National Army troops from Camp Gordon, Atlanta, Ga., marched by to the strains of "Stars and Stripes Forever," played by the Grenadier Guards. From the British war office flew only one flag—"Old Glory." At a window stood the leading statesmen of the British Empire, waving greetings to the American fighting men as they passed the historic building in the first parade in the British capital. Thousands in the British capital. Thousands lined the streets cheering madly as the troops swept by.

On the front facing Amiens, heavy gun duels are going on in sector between Grivesnes and Mailliraineval where the Americans are aiding the French.

NO EXCESS PROFITS GO

NEW BILL WILL BE DRASTIC IN PROHIBITING ALL FORMS OF PROFITEERING.

(By International News Service.)

Washington, May 11.—While conservative republicans opened fire against the proposed revenue bill in the House today, a hint was given that the new administration bill will be the most drastic war taxation ever considered. Senator Lewis of Illinois, Democratic whip, said the new bill would set a figure on "fair profit" and would take for itself every cent of "excess profits." It would deal a blow against the injury, which he believed profiteering is doing the national morale at large. Senator Lewis also said, he was confident the theory of the bill should be "so profits to any man because of the war." Even under government fixed prices many concerns are reported to have made as large profits or larger than before regulations were laid. This is true especially of coal.

OUR SERVICE FLAG

Italy has sent Gen. Foch 250,000 men for the reserve army to go to Berlin.

Gen. Maurice is about as popular in England as Senator LaFollette is in this country.

Rev. Geo. H. Sieveking, pastor of an Evangelical church near Evansville, has been interned at Atlanta for preaching Pro-German sermons.

Somebody is doing some lying about the Hobsonizing of Ostend. As the Germans never report their own disasters correctly, it is easy to guess who the Ananias is.

The War Department issued a casualty list for Friday containing sixty-nine names, twenty of which are fatalties, twenty severely wounded,
and three Americans reported prisoners.

Gen. March's daughter, Miss Josephine, is going to dance a two step instead of leading a German, by choosing her own partner and marrying Maj. Swing, her father's aid. The General can balance all.

Nicaragua will line up with Uncle Sam and help feed the Allies. She will see that the right kind of milk is in her cocoanuts and that her bananas have peelings that will not slip under the heel.

American soldiers in France will not be permitted to vote in the coming elections, the war department has definitely decided. Men in training in this country will be allowed to vote if their states wish to collect the ballots.

In spite of German denials, the closing of Ostend harbor is officially reported to have been at least partially successful. The old Vindictive was sunk between the piers across the narrow entrance, loaded with concrete. The British lost one motor launch, which was sunk to avoid its falling into the hands of the enemy.

Wheat flour substitutes should sell for from 10 to 20 per cent. less than wheat flour, Food Administrator Hoover notified state food administrators. The administrators were instructed to direct wholesalers to stop dealing with retailers who cannot justify their prices on the basis of the cost of their goods. Cornmeal and oatmeal should sell 20 per cent.
below the price of wheat flour, and corn flour and barley flour sell 10 per cent. below wheat flour, the administrators were informed.

SIX IN ONE DAY.

Sublieutenant Rease Fonck, the French ace, brought down six German airplanes in the course of two patrols.
The first two were downed in ten seconds, the third, five minutes, and the other three in the course of the second patrol.

The Birthday Party

By SUSAN CLAGETT

A crunch of feet upon the hard snow; a gurgle of laughter ending in a scream of delight. Blair Henderson lifted his head, a smile upon his lips.
He glanced at his desk piled high with work, hesitated, turned toward the window, paused again, then walked across the room, threw up the sash and looked out.

At the moment no one was in sight;
then, amid a gale of laughter, a belated came from the end of the house rushing with the fleetness of the wind down the steeply sloping lawn. Blair counted as the door passed. "Whereon earth did the youngster get them all," he wondered. His gaze followed the children out of sight then came back to a woman standing near the steps leading up to the house.

She did not turn her head and given the opportunity, he watched her intently noting the wind-blown hair;
the brilliant color of the half-seen cheek. He was struck, too, by the perfect poise of his sister's friend who had been a guest in his home for several weeks. Absorbed in his work he had scarcely noticed her before; had shown her only such courtesy as was due her as a house guest, meeting her only at meal time, and lately not then.
He had given this no heed. Now, as he watched her, he idly wondered if she had been away and had just returned. As the thought came to him she ran quickly up the steps and into the hall.

An hour later a very tired little boy crept into his uncle's arms to tell of his wonderful afternoon.

"You know, it's my birthday, an'
Muvver gave me a party an' told me
I could go out into the 'byways and hedges' an' gather 'em in. I didn't know just what she meant, Uncle Blair, an' I didn't see no hedges an' no byways, but I went out on the street an' found Jimmy who sells papers an' black shoes. He's great—and Jimmy told me 'bout the apple boy who lives way off from here, an' we went for him an' he told me of Bobby Burns.
He has only one leg, but that didn't make any difference 'cause his crutch walks as fast as the good leg. An'
coming back we met the butcher's boy, and I asked him as nice as I could an' when we got back Tim was here an' cook's boy and girl."

The man laughed. "I hope your mother had enough to eat."
"It was just beautiful. There was ice cream hearts an' cakes an' sanwiches an' Ellen told us stories about St. Valentine, 'cause I'm a Valentine baby. Did you know that, uncle
Blair?"

Blair the elder drew the boy close.
"Surely, the most wonderful valentine
I ever heard of. But who is Ellen?"

The boy looked surprised. "Why,
you see her every day."

"I do? Then perhaps I don't know her by that name. But it sounds familiar." He thought for a moment, diving back into old memories. "I had a little sweetheart by that name. She was just about as big as you and she sent me a valentine every year until after I went to college. I have one of them in the back of my watch where I can look at it now and then." He pulled out his watch, opened it and glazed at the picture within with a reminiscent smile. "That was the last one she sent me and I never heard from her again. I'm always looking for her and sometimes I hope I will find her."

The youngster looked at the drawing with interest. "Ellen's watch has one, too," he said. "A big boy gave it to her when she was a little girl.
Isn't it funny both of you've got pictures, only hers is lots prettier. Two little birds, she calls them love birds, kissing each other—lots prettier than those hearts with a silk running through 'em."

The watch closed with a snap and a look of keen interest crept into the man's eyes.

"I must make the acquaintance of this wonderful lady who tells stories and carries love birds about with her.
Where can we find her?"

Blair looked at his uncle in astonishment. "Don't you really, truly know her? She's been here a long time. She did go away but came back yesterday, an' she's been sittin' down hill all mornin'. You're jokin' Uncle
Blair."

"Do you mean Miss Fairbanks? Is she Ellen?"

Blair junior nodded. "An' now I must go an' it certainly is nice to have birthday parties." Slipping from his uncle's knees the boy marched from the room leaving the man in a brown study from which he did not emerge until aroused by the opening of the library door.

The girl paused as she was about to enter, then came into the room. Even then she seemed to hesitate, he thought, and watched her intently as she approached, searching for some resemblance between this woman of graceful bearing and the awkward but lovable child who had grown into his heart when a youth. He offered her his chair and himself stood before the glowing fire.

He was unconscious of the intentness of his gaze as he searched her face and as she did not speak at once,
he said abruptly:

"My nephew has made of my mind
a mass of memories, Miss Fairbanks.
Will you be so good as to refresh your hair back a trifle from your left ear

I do not mean to be rude, but I want to identify you, as your name is unfamiliar. I lost a very dear friend years ago. I have looked for her but have not found her. Today Blair tells me she may have been in my home for weeks past."

From the depths of her chair she looked up at him. There was a little smile about her lips as she replied:
"The years have effaced the scar.
Mr. Henderson, if it is that you have in mind."

"Thank heaven if there is no trace of it. I have always been afraid I disfigured you for life. But without it how am I to know that you are really you?"

"Am I so greatly changed?"

"You have heard of the duckling and the swan?"

"Surely it was not as bad as that,
but now that you mention it I recall that you named me 'duckling'." She laughed. "I have been wondering how long it would take you to remember me and when I entered the room I had reached the moment when I discovered of recognition. Mr. Henderson, I have not of your life a burden. I do not always care for adoration, and I desired you."

"It develops, divinely in the right sort of a fellow," he answered thoughtfully, as he watched her. "I have often wondered what became of you;
why you should have dropped so terribly from our life. I was bewildered when I found you gone. I had been so long accustomed to adoration that it was hard to adjust myself to the colder attitude of those about me.
You had grown into the very fibres of my being. The duckling was lovable.
I missed her and I missed the care I took of her, although the scars did not attest to it. I wanted to die when I saw you lying in the snow with the blood running down your face."

He smiled at the remembrance. "No one seemed to know where your father went after your mother's death. But I made a covenant with myself; to find you. I never thought of you as grown up. It was always as my little sweetheart, which of course was foolish."

"Why, of course," she asked selate-
ly. "Don't you think a child can retain a memory?" She unbuttoned the watch hanging upon her breast, opened it and held it so that he could see two little birds drawn upon a scrap of paper.

"I can match that." He snapped his own open showing two hearts pierced by a dart. "But there was something else." He was showing more of earnestness than the occasion seemed to demand.

The girl colored. "I have forgotten."

"Your pardon, but I think not."

She still held her watch, but as he spoke it fell from her fingers. Something bright rolled away from it and a slip of paper fell so that a line of writing was visible.

Blair Henderson stooped, his color rising as he picked up the trifles.
"Why did you say that you had forgotten?" he asked. "Did you believe the boy could know what he wanted and not desire it as a man?" He looked at the tiny ring set with turquoise forget-me-nots; the scrap of paper upon which was written "to my wife." "Was that the reason?"

"Why should I remember anything when for four weeks I have been a guest in your home and you did not recognize me?"

"That is over and done with. I know you now, although I yet do not understand your change of name. Are you going to play with me or will you be honest and give me the chance to show you the man as earnest as the boy once was?"

"I think, Blair, the difference between the man and the boy is only a matter of years. He seems about the same to me."

"And the girl? Has she changed?"

"When her father died she was adopted by a very dear aunt and took her name. The years made a great difference in appearance, but otherwise she did not alter. Old memories were too precious to part with and she still clings to them. I cannot play with you, Blair. I am happy in the thought that boy and man are of the same mind, and if the little ring was not so small I would be wearing it now."

"That is a fault easily remedied," he returned, as he drew her to him. "You must let me have the measure of your finger."

Why the Blue Heron Is Funny.

Did you ever watch a great blue heron fishing? Knee deep he stands in some pool, stream or bay, and no marble statue has anything on him for being immovable, says the Philadelphia Ledger. Presently some member of the fanny tribe, perhaps a chap out of class or the whole school even, wanders by beneath the crystal depth and—whack! The combination of long bent neck and dagger bill does a stunt that is both funny and effective and generally gets the fish. The entire aspect is peculiar and hard to describe;
it is much like a miniature and plumed clothesrack with a crazy long attachment, the latter being lengthened by a released, watchspring. You can see it, but merely so; no more than that.

Cross Purposes.

"Brother Hardesty, you believe in the efficacy of prayer, don't you?"

"Sure I do."

"Well, some of us have been praying that we may be able to raise money enough to build a new meeting house
this year, you know."

"Yes, and some of us has been praying that we may be able to make the old one last one more year; an' that's the prayer, Brother Keepalong, that's goin' to be answered."

The picture above illustrates the big chime clock recently installed by the Planters Bank & Trust Co., on the front of the banking house on Main street. This clock is a very great convenience to the public both of the city and county since it can be seen and heard from any section of the Main street business district. The beautiful chimes are not only pleasant to hear but the striking every 15 minutes will constantly remind every one of the time of day and will be a help in keeping engagements. This is another manifestation of one of our banking institutions to respond to the public demands for a public convenience. The installation of this big clock cost a considerable sum of money and is another testimonial of the interest of the Planters Bank & Trust Co. in the progress and welfare of the city and county. Heretofore this bank has manifested its interest in all progressive movements as evidenced by its financing the Canning Clubs for Girls and the Boys Heifer Club and contributions to turnpikes. For the benefit and education of the farmer the bank has issued to them a book called "The Veterinarian," which treats of all kinds of animal diseases and remedies for same; copies of Kentucky Farm Laws that affect the farmer; booklet on Seed Corn Testing by P. G. Holden and an Annual Circular Cattle Letter. To further encourage the farmer to raise more live stock the bank has set aside a fund of about $75,000 to make cattle loans to its patrons. These are some of the ways the bank has sought to express its appreciation of the patronage of the public and hopes to be able to continue to merit their patronage. There is no doubt that the Planters Bank holds the interests of the people first and deserves much favorable consideration at their hands.

WHICH - THE KAISER OR THE ALP DESCENDING FROM THE KAISER THE DEATH OF

Did you know that the Kaiser had a poison-filled abscess in his ear, and that if it burst he would be a raving maniac?

Did you know that the Kaiser's left arm is six inches shorter than his right, and that the hand is puny as a child's? And did you know how he carried it in order to disguise the deformity?

Did you know that the Kaiser has a mania for admiring beautiful hands, which greatly embarrasses the ladies of his court? That he wears many bracelets and feminine rings, copied from those he admires? That he has 360 full-dress uniforms, that he was twice king, twice a grand duke, 18 times a duke, twice a prince, nine times a count, besides being a bishop? Did you know why he slaps his right thigh all the time? Of course, you didn't. Few people outside of the imperial circle know them. They are secrets as carefully guarded as has been the proof that Germany planned and started the war.

All these things and many more in the private life of the Jackal of Europe, who has plunged the whole world into war and sorrow, are shown in "THE KAISER, THE BEAST OF BERLIN." To miss it is to miss the most illuminating expose of this enemy of mankind.

DODGE BROTHERS

CLOSED CAR

A Market That Steadily Renews Itself

It does not look as though the market for this car could ever be entirely satisfied. That sounds like a strange statement, but there is a sound reason for making it. A shortage has continued, now, for two years and a half, in the face of a large and steady increase in output.

(The shortage may not be local, or sectional, or seasonal but it is national, universal and continuous.) Unlimited production is not consistent with Dodge Brothers scrupulous methods of manufacture. They must always give to their car that over-care which the public expects from them. It is the root, and the source, and the reason for that very steadiness of demand we are describing. They will never go beyond a production point which might place their reputation in jeopardy. A more remarkable recognition of merit on the part of the public it would be difficult to conceive. Every increase in production is comfortably absorbed in an increased market. The works in which the car is produced have grown till they are almost a city in themselves. But when the satisfaction of the market seems to be in sight, the horizon of that market widens and draws itself still farther away.

The reason for it all is so simple that it sounds almost absurd. That simple reason is that the goodness of the car is seldom called into question. The thoughts about it are the same thoughts in thousands of minds. The market grows by what it feeds on—and what it feeds on is the performance of the car. Deep and abounding satisfaction surrounds the sale and the use of practically every car that leaves the works.

Dodge Brothers are among the largest producers in the world. But they will never imperil their production by sacrificing quality to mere quantity. For that reason we believe the condition will always be what it is now. We believe the goodness of the car will always produce a demand it will be impossible to entirely supply.

NICE BUSINESS BEING DONE

FORBES MANUFACTURING COMPANY DOES BIG AUTO ACCESSORY BUSINESS.

Notwithstanding the fact that the Forbes Mfg. Co. has, for several years, been engaged in almost every line of business conducted in the county no one line has ever proven more popular than the line of automobile and motorcycle accessories added about a year or so ago and which is carried in the Hardware Department on Main street.

partment on Main street.

As a leader for this line the company has secured the agency for the Federal Rugged Tread Tires manufactured by the Federal Rubber Co., and a complete line is carried in stock at all times. This is considered one of the very best lines of auto tires now being manufactured.

A full line of accessories and repair parts is also carried in stock with particular attention given to Ford parts.

The accessibility of the location and the splendid management behind this department to push it, it should soon increase the business in this line and make it second to none in the county.

Tweeds are popular again, also serge, tricotine, gabardine and Poirer twill.

Illinois will celebrate its centennial December 3, 1918.

MOTOR TRUCKS FORCING HORSE INTO OBLIVION

The war has given the horse a new lease on life in the losing battle which that animal is waging to prevent the automobile from forcing it into oblivion along with the pterodactyl and mastodon.

Three years ago the number of horses in America began to dwindle and last year no less a partisan of the horse than the Secretary of Agriculture said in his annual report: "Slowly but surely the auto truck is driving dray horses from the city streets. Already the automobile has effectually put the driving horse off the country roads. The farm demand for several years has been the mainstay of the horse market."

But just at the moment that the automobile had the horse dangling over the ropes ready to sag under the finishing whallop, America entered the war, and under the stimulating effect of a heavy demand for cavalry horses and for increased motive power throughout the nation, tired Mr. Equus got back his wind and now is battling away with all four feet determined to last out several more rounds.

Horse is Big Eater.

One automobile enthusiast has pointed out that the horse eats so much that there would be an immediate demand for his destruction were it possible to replace him quickly for the work which must be done. By way of statistics this enthusiast points out that while only 60,000,000 acres of farm lands in this country are devoted to wheat growing, 41,000,000 acres are given up to oats and 54,000,000 acres to hay, two articles of diet which are essentially horsefeed. Ninety-five million acres for horsefeed and only sixty million for wheat in these times, when every acre counts, shows altogether too much favoritism to the horse, in this man's opinion.

Having practically vanquished the horse in the field of passenger transportation, the automobile is now taking a new line of attack by making a strong bid for supremacy in the field of truck transportation.

A statistician of the United States Tire Company estimates that nearly a million and a half truck tires are now in use on commercial vehicles in this country. The trucks in use have already supplanted more than a million horses, and it is safe to say that when the war is over and there is a surplusage of motive power, the auto trucks will stay and the horses will go. The same may be said of the farm tractors which appear to be destined for an important place on the farm at the expense of the horse.

The motor truck easily demonstrates its superiority over the horse-drawn truck in the present national emergency in which the automobile has been called on to help out the railroads.

In the foregoing, nothing has been said about the automobile struggle for supremacy with the mule. With his usual obstinacy the mule refuses to get to one side, and continue to show an increase each year in this country of from 50,000 to 100,000.

OVERLAND RECORDS PROVE THAT PHYSICIANS FAVOR CLOSED CARS.

A study of the sales records of Willys-Overland, Inc., reveals many interesting facts in connection with the growing business uses of the motor car. It is an established fact that the farmer has been one of the largest purchasers of the automobiles and now it has been conservatively estimated that 63 per cent of the automobile ownership is confined to the rural districts including towns of less than 5,000 population. But there were other trades and professions which have found the automobile to be indispensable in the effective handling of their business.

A striking example of this is the medical profession. The physicians are found among the pioneer and most consistent buyers of passenger cars in the United States almost from the inception of the industry. The very nature of their business makes the use of the automobile imperative. The physician appreciates the time-saving qualities of the automobile. Emergency calls allow him no choice of time or season. There are thousands in the medical profession whose continual use of Overland cars is shown by the records of the Willys-Overland Company. While some of these men are buying the open type of car, the convertible or closed cars are much in the predominance. Among the cars which are particularly popular with the physician are the Overland light six coupe and the Model 90 Sedan.

The construction of the cars quickly adaptable to every weather condition and maintaining an equable temperature throughout the round of seasons by quickly and easily changing closed protection to open ventilation and clear vision, make them primarily the most acceptable for the daily work and recreation of the physician.

Upon the health of the physician his patients are dependent. It is, therefore, important for him to safeguard his own health from the rigors of both winter sleet and snow and summer heat and showers. All this he finds with the simple and easy Overland closed cars.

Snug-fitting windows quickly make them impervious to biting winds or driving rains, sleet or snow, or almost instantly they may be removed to admit the balmy breezes of spring or summer.

The Christian & Todd Service Co. was incorporated last September by several leading business men of Hopkinsville and Clarksville and at once secured the agency for three popular makes of automobiles—The Chevrolet, the Hudson and the Saxon.

cars till the open weather came this spring. About all that could be done was to open an office and show room in the Hill Building on S. Main street and receive shipments of cars and make preparations for the spring trade.

The Chevrolet car was made their leader and since the beginning of the spring days Mr. F. C. Cull, General Salesman for the company, has sold and delivered 67 cars. He says that 61 of this number were Chevrolets. This company is still able to get cars shipped by freight, which saves driving the car 700 miles overland before offering it to their customers.

The Chevrolet is proving one of the most popular cars used in this section of the country and is evidenced by the large number of purchasers and users. The following is a partial list of Chevrolet owners.

FALLS TO HIS DEATH.

Pensacola, Fla., May 11.—Richard McGill, of Toledo, Ohio, a student aviator, was burned to death when his airplane fell near here Friday.

ADVANTAGES OF VALVE-IN-HEAD MOTOR ARE TOLD

"Considering the number of unusual features possessed by the valve-in-head motor," says F. C. Cull, of the Christian & Todd Service Co., is not any wonder that this type is earning for itself a high place in the minds of a great many motor car owners, and is becoming more popular each day.

"To begin with, it uses gasoline miserly, and what is used is not wasted in the least, so it is easy to see how this type of power plant would be much in demand today.

"To understand the advantages and workings of the valve-in-head motor, it is not necessary to have any technical knowledge, for the plan is simple and it is understandable by anyone.

"In the common method of gasoline engine construction, the gasoline vapor is usually introduced into a side chamber—a sort of waiting room. There it explodes with a force that travels in a round about way until it strikes the piston.

"In the valve-in-head motor it is different. In this type the gasoline vapor is introduced directly into the cylinder head, and the explosion occurs directly over the piston head, the cylinder being without corners to collect gases, the fullest benefit is secured by the explosion.

"All the gasoline vapor explodes and all its force goes to the flywheel. It is for this reason that the valve-in-head is powerful and dependable. All Chevrolet models are

MAXWELLS CLIMB HILL

DRIVEAWAY FLEET SURMOUNTS GRADE, DECLINING TOW BY TEAMS.

Just previous to the advance in price of Maxwells, Taylor & Nauth, Inc., dealers under the Buffalo distributor, had a number of unfilled orders for Maxwells and no prospect of getting them to freight. R. Nauth thereupon organized a crew of salesmen and mechanics from the service station, and drove a string of Maxwells from Detroit to Buffalo.

On the way to Buffalo a very amusing and significant incident occurred which demonstrated how much more economical Maxwell is as compared with other cars.

At a spot a few miles west of Erie, Pa., the road dips into a gully, both sides of which are very steep. The road was slushy and rutted and automobile drivers experienced extreme difficulty in getting up on either side. A farmer, with an eye for business, was on deck all day with two teams, hauling cars up the hill at $4 a car.

When the train of Maxwells drew up, Mr. Farmer was ready with his teams to take them up at $4 a car—no discount for quantity. Mr. Nauth looked at the hill then looked at the train, made a mental calculation of what the expense would be and decided to pin his faith on the Maxwell and save money.

Refusing the farmer's proffered assistance, he started down the west side of the gully, shifted his gears to low and then chuck—chuck—chuck to the top of the hill. Every car in the string went up that hill without a falter and the cheers of the other automobile drivers who were unable to turn the trick.

The cars came through without a mishap and if anything very much improved by the run.

TRAIN RUNS INTO CAR

Evidently there is no breaking point to the Maxwell motor, as smash-ups, collisions and over-exertion runs fail to stop the smooth-running engine.

The latest demonstration of the durability of the Maxwell motor car took place in Punxsutawney, Pa., August 5, when it and a freight train crashed into each other. Because of the sturdiness of the construction of the Maxwell, three occupants escaped death in the accident.

In a terrific collision with a freight train the lighter motor car was hurled over a ten-foot embankment. Riding in the car were Harry Simpson, his wife and their baby.

The occupants were thrown out of the car but the strong construction of the vehicle protected them from serious injury by the compact of the collision.

The Maxwell was hauled back up the embankment to the roadway. After the destructive effect of the collision—a twisted front axle, had been repaired, the Maxwell was driven away under its own power.

"The Maxwell motor can stand anything—it's a mechanical marvel," declared Simpson, as he reached his home in Punxsutawney.

Absolutely no repairs or adjustments to the motor were necessary on account of the accident.

Mr. Simpson, of course, is more of a Maxwell fan now than ever before and he praises the life saving car on all occasions. His particular car is paraded as a relic to be revered and admired.

"I doubt if any other car could have withstood the terrific impact of the collision without being broken to pieces," he said.

"That Maxwell motor certainly has the power," Simpson declared after the accident.

Can you blame him for his enthusiasm for the car?

It is a common thing for a CHEVROLET "Four Ninety" to travel twenty-five miles on a gallon of gasoline. There is no mystery as to why it should do better per gallon than other cars.

The valve-in-hand motor is designed on a principle so simple that any man who has ever had a hammer in his hand, knows it to be the RIGHT principle.

When you strike a nail squarely on the head you get the full benefit of the force behind the blow. If you hit a nail a glancing blow, you dissipate much of the force.

In the CHEVROLET valve-in-hand motor the explosion occurs squarely on the top of the piston head. The entire force of the explosion is delivered to the driving mechanism.

In other types of motors—the T-head and L-head types—gasoline is exploded in a side chamber—the force or impulse must travel a short distance at an angle to reach the piston head. Thus it strikes a glancing blow. It has the same ineffectiveness of a blow delivered on the edge of a nail-head.

It is this difference in motors that makes possible low CHEVROLET gasoline consumption. It means all the difference in the world to your pocket-book.

And it explains why people who have a respect for money select the CHEVROLET, entirely aside from the initial low price of the CHEVROLET. If this means a difference to you, a demonstration of any CHEVROLET model will prove its genuineness. And the demonstration is gladly yours any time you request it.

HIS JOB TO BANDAGE WOUNDED HOUSES

American Boss Carpenter Putting French Villages Back on the Map.

It was a monotonous stretch of ugly trench, wire entanglements, gaping shell holes, accented by the blackened skeleton of shell killed forests silhouetted against a dull, hopeless sky.

This had once been beautiful rolling land like our own Ohio and Indiana—rich in grain fields, orchards and gardens. Now it was desolation—nothing could live there—seemingly nothing did.

We had come on some rising ground, and as we climbed we reached the brow of the slope, and of a sudden it seemed that some giant had suddenly twisted the old world under our feet and we were back home, for of a sudden the sounds of life came up to us out of a bustling center of industry. That satisfying chug of an honest hammer beat sinking willing nail into sound wood, and before us was a panorama of new building, with piles of clean lumber stacked here and there, and the framing of many new buildings told where the wood was going. Then we heard the voice of a man who talked real "United States"—telling 27 other carpenters what to do—out in this foreign land thousands of miles from home.

We inquired of the boss as to who he was, and with true sense of humor he said: "I am a Red Cross nurse. My job is bandaging wounded houses."

Putting Villages Back on Map.

"This was once a French village," he went on to say, "in the center of fine sugar beet country. We are living now on the site of the sugar mill," he said, pointing to a long, low barracks, which plainly had been recently built. "We are working for the American Red Cross—putting villages back on the map. In four more weeks we'll be out of here and on our way to the next ruin, for there are many villages that need us. We go from place to place, always finding that our lumber has reached there first, so we can get right to work, clean up and move on again."

It is just like pioneering, this rebuilding work of our Red Cross—only more important—more important because it is vital to the winning of the war that these people come back to their soil and plant new crops—for future years of war or peace.

And so the tide of war sweeps back from whence it came, a Red Cross army follows close behind in uniforms of overalls, armed with Yankee hammers and nails to coax back the foundations that have been brushed into a quivering helplessness in the south and east.

They are coming back home now, just a few days behind these carpenters—back to the best fields, the gardens and the farms. Soon they will be feeding themselves and thousands of others.

WHITE PLAGUE KILLS MORE MEN THAN BULLETS

It seems longer, but it was less than four years ago that the nations had not yet started in to wipe each other off the map and that the only times when one heard of the Red Cross were times of flood or disaster and at Christmas time, when the peaceful little Red Cross tuberculosis seals made their annual appearance.

Perhaps, in fact, it was the long, ardent fight in America against the White Plague which, in spite of the war's enormous new demands, is responsible for the special interest being taken by the American Red Cross in France's frightful struggle against consumption. This scourge seems to mark the trench fighter for its own. It kills more men than do bullets and poison gas combined. Until the American Red Cross was permitted by the French government to start its drive against tuberculosis it looked as if, even with a victory over the Hun, France might eventually be conquered by this deadliest foe.

Already things are looking brighter. The Red Cross has taken over old hospitals and built new ones. More than 500 tuberculosis dispensaries are to be opened throughout the country, and Red Cross doctors and nurses—scores of them—are devoting themselves exclusively to this fight, doing over there exactly the same kind of work which is financed in America by the little Christmas seals. It is one of the ways in which by our contributions to the

OIL WELL IN ENGLISH TOWN?

Undoubtedly Fluid is There, but From Whence It Came Seems to Be Matter of Mystery.

Polluted well water of long standing at the market town of Ramsey, near Peterborough, England, prompted one well owner to dig for the cause, says an exchange. He struck oil in short order and created a boom and a mystery. Another well also yielded oil. Pumpings from both, averaging 500 gallons a day, sold on the spot for 2 shillings the gallon and burned in lamps like ordinary illuminating oil.

Speculators jumped at the find rather cautiously. They lacked the sporting spirit of Kansas and Oklahoma boomers. One ventured a £5 note for a share in a well and asked £1,000 for his interest next morning. Nothing doing. The game wasn't ripe enough for plungers.

Official tests of the oil deepened the mystery. They showed the oil was already refined, carrying a specific gravity of 80, which is the gravity of refined oil. One of the testers, whose opinion was flouted, offered a bet of £500 that the oil was not natural oil. No takers.

The present conclusion seems to be that the oil is due to leakage from some unknown source. There are no oil tanks in Ramsey or Peterborough town and the source of the leak, if such it is, must be at a greater distance. Lucky well owners are not worrying about the source. With all the zeal of gold diggers they stick to the pumps and rake in the shillings from eager buyers of the fluid.

WHALE PAYING FOR ITS SINS

Descendants of Big Fish Are Now Being Swallowed by the Descendants of Jonah.

We rise to a defense of Jonah. He was not a bad sort. In fact, he had always been a good citizen and a friend of the poor; but because he balked at going on a political mission to a bum town the political machine hired a gang of pirates to pitch him from the hurricane deck and compel him to swallow a whale—or was it the other way round? It was a mean trick and Jonah knew it, and he made it so hot for the whale that the latter spewed him out at Long Beach, in which city, for his own safety, he feigned repentance and delivered the message with which he had been entrusted. However, ever since that time the sons of the prophet have had it in for the whale and at last the time has come to get even. Today whale steak is being sold in great quantities at the butcher shops. It is cheap meat and is almost as good as mutton or veal. Take a whale steak half an inch thick, drop it in boiling water for a minute, adding a pinch of soda, then take it out and place it in a hot, greased pan, sear it quickly on both sides, fry it for three minutes, add butter, pepper and salt, and you have a dish fit for a king. Verily the sins of the whales are visited upon their children.—Los Angeles Times.

Peanut Bread a Success.

A baking company in Gainesville, Fla., working in co-operation with B. F. Williamson, a chemist of that city, has put peanut bread upon the market and is securing wide distribution for it in that locality. The peanut flour used is made from peanut cake left after oil extraction. It contains a satisfactory percentage of fat and is said to have almost twice the nitrogenous food value of dried beef—44 per cent for peanut flour, against 25 per cent for dried beef.

One-fifth peanut flour to four-fifths wheat flour produces a balanced ration, supplying necessary ingredients furnished by bread and meat in human diet. Peanut flour is said to be readily digestible, wholesome and palatable, and the Florida concern believes it will be able to market it at a price below that of wheat flour, pound for pound.

A Thing of Beauty.

The plume of the ostrich is like nothing else in nature. The nearest resemblance is to be found in an ephemeral thing—the foam of a breaking wave. It must be unthinkable ages since the wings of this bird subserved any use but that of beauty; their function in the matter of covering the eggs during incubation is quite secondary and could easily be dispensed with. The perfectly even barbs are soft as gossamer and, contrary to the rule among birds that fly, quite disconnected and independent one of the other. The quills, from their point of emergence from the socket, become increasingly flexible and lithe. The plumes convey suggestions of luxurious ductility, of effortless grace, of sumptuousness, and above all, of purity.—William C. Scully, in Atlantic.

BIG INCREASE OF BUSINESS

MAKE ADDITIONAL STORAGE NECESSARY AS NEW BUILDING IS COMPLETED.

The growing automobile and garage business of Hammond & McDonald last year outgrew the capacity of the building which has been in use for the past few years and necessitated the building of additional storage and sales room.

This firm has just recently completed a big new building which is connected with the old building by removing a part of the old west wall. This new addition is 50x125 feet, faces on 11th street, is of fire-proof construction, and is equipped with an automatic sprinkler system as a further protection of cars stored in this building. The gentlemen comprising this firm have kept constantly before them in constructing this building the comfort, convenience and safety of customers and patrons.

All the repair work is still done in the old part of the garage adjoining Virginia street. A full line of accessories and repair parts is kept on hand at all times.

SPECIAL MOTOR CARS FOR BUSY WAR WORKERS

ARMY AND NAVY MEN HAVE OWN FLEET OF TOWN CARS AND TAXICABS.

A taxicab company of Washington, D. C., has just put into operation a fleet of special Dodge Brothers' town cars and taxicabs, which are being used almost exclusively by members of the Army and Navy Club.

The need for a high grade type of motor car for rental purposes has become increasingly apparent as the number of Washington transients grew with the progress of the national war work. The cars were designed to be the equal, in appearance and in comfort, of those which officials and others use at their homes.

Both town cars and taxicab bodies were designed by Dodge Brothers dealer at New York, and are mounted on the standard chassis. A great many such cars are in the service of private owners and taxi companies in New York.

Prof. O. V. Petty and Miss Sarah Marshall, of the High school, were not applicants for re-election.

Miss Addie Green was elected as an emergency teacher for the grade buildings.

PRINCESS TOMORROW.

Julian Eltinge is probably the most notable female impersonator on the stage or screen and to those who know him, there is nothing at all feminine about him as a man. He is a real honest-to-goodness, red blooded HE man.

In his latest photoplay, "The Clever Mrs. Carfax," he, while impersonating a feminine character, is forced by circumstances to continue the role—against his own desires—and after a series of thrilling adventures, is enabled to catch two crooks who have been endeavoring to rob the grandmother of his sweetheart. Complication after complication sets in and instead of being able to change from his character as Mrs. Carfax into his own self as Temple Trask, he is forced to play the game, and it is thus that he becomes the companion of his own sweetheart and tells her all about what a fine fellow he is as a man; but of course everything turns out all right eventually, but it is some job to keep an even keel and not spoil all the plans for catching the crooks.

Broadway motor Having Fine Business.

Nashville, Tenn., May 4, 1918.—Fifty cars in ten days—yes, sir, that's the record set during the past ten days by the Broadway Motor Company when they sold fifty Chevrolets in just that length of time.

"The Chevrolets have been going mighty good," said Manager Reed. "In fact, we are putting them over just as fast as we can get them from the factory—they don't stay in the garage hardly long enough to get washed up good. We are continuing to get our cars by freight, as we have from the start; we have already unloaded seventy Chevrolets this week and expect more daily."

"SMILING PAT" COMING.

Lieut. O'Brien to Tell of Experience.

Here in his own country, even though dressed in the uniform of the greatest fighters the world has ever known, it is hard to conceive Lieutenant "Pat" O'Brien a warrior. With his mop of wavy, dark brown hair, clear twinkling eyes of hazel hue, and his clean-cut features, ever wreathed in a perpetual smile, he looks the very soul of good nature and kindness.

And "Smiling Pat" is the soul of good nature, except when actually engaged with the enemy, and then, according to the statement of one of his comrades, the lieutenant is the very devil himself.

In his last air battle, Lieutenant O'Brien encountered nine German airplanes at a height of 10,000 feet. He engaged four of them, and does not hesitate to say that he thought his time had come. Jockeying during the fight brought his machine down to 8,000 feet from terra firma, and at that height the fire from one of the Hun's airships struck the Lieutenant in the mouth, entering his throat and incapacitating him.

Before he became unconscious he figured that it was all over. His aeroplane landed inside the German lines and was completely smashed, but Lieut. O'Brien miraculously escaped without any injury other than a bullet wound. He was taken prisoner by the Germans, and while being sent to a prison camp in the heart of Germany leaped through a window of the train while it was speeding along, and finally made his way into Holland.

His companions in the Flying corps saw his machine crash and considered him dead. He was so recorded in the records of the British army and that he is alive and has returned, bringing military secrets with him, is one of the outstanding historical incidents of the world war. It is an event countries engaged in the struggle, and unquestionably the German government would give much to have Lieutenant O'Brien again in captivity.

Lieutenant O'Brien will deliver his lecture, "Behind the German Lines" at the Hopkinsville Tabernacle, Monday evening, May 13th, under the auspices of the Christian County Woman's Committee Council of National Defense.
